

Title: Catch a Tiger by its Toe

Ring: 3
Category: Nature/Animal
Subject: Domesticated Lion
Audience: Youth ages 7-12
Production year: 2005
Duration: 3:41
Language version: Urdu
Producer: Jamshed Farshori

Transcription with Time Code

Narration in female voice

Time Code		Description
0:10:01	Narration	With so many choices available of animals that make wonderful pets and readily adapt to human Companionship, why would anyone want to bring into their home an animal, that does not fit this description? The answer is usually a mix of genuine but misguided interest in animals of all types, Along with, a strong need to bolster the ego by possessing some sort of exotic pet. This is not a stuffed toy. And neither is this a jungle or a zoo. It is a home and this is their pet lion. All his regality and grace became a thing of the past the day this leash was put on him.

0:11:39	Narration	The city's awe has melted the lion's wrath like ice cream. And he licks it wherever he can find it.
0:12:31	Narration	This chain is now, more or less, a body part. He eats, sleeps and walks around with it. He needs a lot of space to move around.
0:13:00	Narration	He knows what is what. He knows he is still the boss, people are afraid of him. Being a domestic pet, does not become, the king the of the jungle. While selecting pets, the least we can do, is choose very wisely and take full responsibility for the choice. Except for the time proven pets, lets allow the wild to be wild.
	THE END	