

A chick hatches

00:01	Hello Oli. We've got chickens at our house.
00:05	I really love the chicks. They're so cuddly.
00:14	D'you want see them hatching?
00:21	This is Ludwina. She's sitting on her eggs.
00:27	Can you see the way she's sitting?
00:33	She flattens her body.
00:38	The eggs are really warm underneath her.
00:47	It's all right, Ludwina, you can carry on hatching your eggs.
00:55	We've got an incubator here too. It's just as warm inside as it is underneath Ludwina
01:01	Here you can see chicks hatching out.
01:09	If you use a lamp, you can see if there's a chick inside an egg.
01:18	That's what an egg without a chick looks like: it lets light through.
01:25	Eggs with chicks in them are different.
01:40	You can't shine a lamp through them. It's only light at the bottom of the egg.
01:51	It won't be long now before the chicks hatch.
02:04	Look, there's one pecking away.
02:11	I'm all excited.
02:16	The chick has almost managed to get out.
02:26	Here it comes!
02:33	It's all wet and exhausted.
02:39	After a while you can recognise it.
02:52	How sweet! I think I'll call her Mara.
