41:02	What a lovely day. Everything is so wonderfully wet. Every snail is fond of rain. Do you see me? I'm here, on the ground!
41:25	I'm not scared of people. I've met plenty, and they all let me be. Why are you looking at me? Don't you know who I am? A slug.
41:45	Do you see this hole? Don't worry, it's not a wound. All slugs have a hole like this. We breathe through it, and there are lungs under it.
42:10	Would you like to see my eyes? OK, I'm not scared of you. My eyes are here, at the end of my feelers. With my lower feelers I feel, and with my upper feelers I can feel and see. Just don't touch me, I'll hide them immediately.
42:50	You people call us slugs, right? We can't do without the saliva. It's our dress-code. Look how shiny I am. I'm covered with saliva all over. Most of it is on the sole. We actually swim in saliva. You know, slugs always leave a trail of saliva behind. Eh, I can smell something. Something to eat.
43:23	What's up? Are you lost? You might have a house, but I have my freedom. No burden to carry around. I can sleep in a different place each day. Come on, move. I don't want to miss my lunch because of you.
43:46	A mushroom, a mushroom!
43:49	It's mine.

43:55	Firm and healthy. It'll do.
43:59	Hey, what do you want? I was here first. Oh...come on then. There's enough for all of us.
44:15	Look at him eat.
44:18	It really is heavenly, though.
44:28	Mmm...
45:00	Soon there will be no mushroom left.
45:07	What's this sun doing here? It's our enemy. If I had a house, I'd hide in it... No – I prefer freedom. So quickly under these leaves because I don't want to be dried by the sun. Bye –bye!
