OUR TRIP

2.25 Thingvellir

This item is a part of a series that was made this winter about places of interest in Iceland. Two boys travel around the country learning about some of the most beautiful places and some of the knowledge they have from a robot that appears on a computer screen when the boys need some pressing questions answered.

In the first item the boys visit the national park at Thingvellir. There is a deep sense of history attached to this place. Thingvellir was the home of Althing, the first parliament. Thingvellir and Thingvallarvatn are renowned for their natural beauty.
