

SAVANNAH ANIMALS

|-------------|--|
| 07:57:06:05 | It just stopped raining. That means we can all graze a little. Aaaah, there's the giraffe... being able to reach the top leaves on the tall trees! Wish I could do that coz the leaves up there must be tasty. You know the giraffe is the tallest animal in these parts, and feeding mostly in the early morning and afternoon on buds, and fruits on the top of acacia and thorn trees. |
| 07:57:40:16 | O and there are the ostriches... spending time together like they always do. You know the ostrich is the fastest bird in the world? You should see them run... maybe that makes up for the fact that they can't fly. |
| 07:57:57:07 | The elephant is the largest animal on land, you can't miss him... so I guess he's not here today... but you know, the elephant has a special job here: it breaks down trees and eats shrubs allowing the grass to grow so that the rest of us can eat. |
| 07:58:14:02 | The lion is also not here today, which is a good thing because he would probably hunt one of us for a meal... the gazelle, antelopes, and impalas. But it's not the lion that would hunt us, it would be the lioness and I don't see her around. |
| 07:58:31:05 | It's getting a little warmer now... |
| 07:58:34:16 | Now we zebras are called the horses of the savannah. That's because we look like horses, but we are smaller. If you notice, we are always in large numbers. This is because we rely on each other to look out for any danger, as we help each other. You are probably wondering how we tell each other apart, I mean we all look the same, black and white stripes. But you know what, our stripe patterns are not the same. |

|--------------------|--|
| | The next time you come around and visit maybe you can study our stripes and you will be able to see. |
| 07:59:11:00 | The gazelle join us, impalas and wildebeest as they graze... since some of the gazelle are too small to feed on the tall grass, thanks to the larger animals, who trample on the grass, they are able to graze. And after it's just rained like today, green shoots of grass begin to grow and the gazelle gather in large numbers to feed. |
| 07:59:28:14 | The rhinoceros on the other hand, likes to live alone. Lucky for him, there are no other animals after him for food. |
| 07:59:58:22 | The sun will be coming down soon, we better go and find a place to rest. |
