00:09:01	When we're at table we eat with a knife and fork, though sometimes we do use our hands...
00:09:06	Chimpanzees, with their hands and feet, resemble us the most.
00:09:14	They love to eat the bark of braches.
00:09:19	Just like this panda. He also uses his sturdy feet as hands.
00:09:24	Some animals eat sticks //
00:09:27	Some people eat with sticks...
00:09:31	Most of the time animals don't use their hands or paws to eat: Take the giraffe: he has a 30 cm long tongue:...
00:09:39	(30 cm): that's as long as a ruler!
00:09:42	Neither does the rhinoceros need any hands. He uses his upper lip, which looks rather like an elongated finger, to push the hay into his mouth!
00:09:50	If we should do that, we'd look something like this...
00:09:55	What's even handier than the rhinoceros' upper lip is the elephant's trunk.
00:10:00	It makes it easy for the elephant to grab hold of food...
00:10:03	Just look how this elephant eats its hay, twisting it around just as if he was eating spaghetti....
00:10:08	.... We can do that too... !!
00:10:14	Not only does the elephant use his trunk to grab hold of things, he also drinks with it.

00:10:19	Up to 7 litres in one gulp.
00:10:21	...and....up to 80 litres a day!
00:10:24	The pike swallows its food down in just a few mouthfuls...
00:10:28	...he's a real guzzler....
00:10:30	The snake is also a guzzler. It can disarticulate its jaw in such a way ...
00:10:35	....that it can swallow prey larger than its own head!
00:10:41	If food won't come to you, than you have to go and look for it yourself! Like the lapwing, for instance. He stamps on the ground until worms and insects appear on the surface...
00:10:51	We're just looking to see what's in the fridge...
00:10:58	.... now, as long as we can open them...
00:11:04	Nuts?
00:11:10	Parrots love nuts! A parrot's beak is like a nutcracker, and he crunches and crunches and nibbles away quite contentedly....
