OFF:

ENTRY: 0000'00'00" – In Rio de Janeiro, all the way in Brazil, whenever the sun comes out one thing is for sure: the kids all run to the beach.– END: 0000'06'12"

ENTRY: 0000'08'04" – And once there, they keep on running: after a ball! – END: 0000'13'06"

ENTRY: 0000'14'17" – Rio is a place with many beaches and in every one of them there are goalposts and nets stuck to the sand.. – END: 0000'21'12"

ENTRY: 0000'23'17" – Be it Saturday or Sunday, Monday or Tuesday, or any other day: before and after school, the beach turns into a soccer pitch ready for great game.– END: 0000'33'18"

ENTRY: 0000'34'05" – And everyone can join in: children living close by or far away... short, tall, slim or chubby, white or black. If the child is green or blue, a great player or has got crooked feet, it is not a problem. It makes no difference: they play together and have a lot of fun.– END: 0000'53'13"

ENTRY: 0000'54'10" – Because the beach belongs to everybody. (There is no need for entry tickets here) All are welcome and there are always spots on the team.. – END: 0001'01'06"

ENTRY: 0001'02'17" Look at that! What a move! – END: 0001'05'14"

ENTRY: 0001'07'09" – And the ball rolls practically the whole year round. It is true! Because in Rio de Janeiro, the sun shines almost every day which means the balls are rolling on the sand...running...laughing...dribbling... AHH and so many goals to cheer! – END: 0001'16'03"
