synopsis

The documentary of

The Nile Thematic Channels
Egypt

Fatma was brought up in a household that prohibits the education of girls. Her father is the one who rejects this. Fatma feels that she is a destitute of the right enjoyed by her brothers and relatives. She yearns for education and discusses the issue with her father who is completely against her going to school. So, she threatens that if he insists on preventing her from joining the school she will never help him again in his works. He agrees. Unfortunately, Fatma is old to join an ordinary school. This disappointed her. However, a new hope is created: there are some schools built to educate girls whose age is older than the ordinary student. She went with a friend of her and prepared all the documents and now she is able to join the school.
