DRIVEN LARA

SYNOPSIS

The 10-year old girl Lara Škrinjar likes to dance and act in theatre productions. She has a cheerful clique of friends from her class and neighborhood often hang out in Lara's family house. Lara is organizing a performance for their dance group. The girls have to perform at the production at the end of the school year. They love to dance at home but now they are facing a performance before an audience; their entire school. Lara has to make a choreography and take care of everything. Lara wants the boys, their friends from school and neighborhood, to join the dance group. The group comes to Lara's house to prepare and rehearse the choreography. During the preparations Lara learns a lot about herself and about how to handle people and conflicts, what is more than most of people manage in a lifetime. Will Lara succeed in all of her intentions and will the group's performance at the end of the school year be a success?
