9-year old Nick has asthma. He and his parents are on holiday in a beautiful natural environment. Nick likes to evade his parents' control and do what his mother and father wouldn't allow him to – even if that can be detrimental to his health. Nick and his two new friends look for a good spot to play football, as Nick's father forbade them to watch the horror movie. They come upon an old abandoned house. Nick throws the ball into the house. The boys have to prove their courage, especially Nick, since the abandoned house reminds him of the scariest part of the horror movie, which he never dares to watch all the way to the end. When he finds himself alone in the dilapidated house, as his friends disappeared in its labyrinth, his fear triggers an asthma attack. Nevertheless, Nick proves to be a master in rescuing and of overcoming his own impediments. During the confrontation with his deepest fears, he discovers that he is not timid at all and that he is able to cope well with unpredictable conditions that arise, such as his asthma.
