Dear friends,

It is with great pride and excitement that I welcome you to the second edition of Eurovision Choir, here in Gothenburg.

Those of us who were fortunate enough to be involved in the production during Latvian Television’s first edition in Riga hold many fond memories of launching Eurovision’s newest competition format. The show was spectacular, the choirs stunning and the music sublime.

But what remains most strongly in my memory is the unique atmosphere of the backstage area around the show. I recall a festive atmosphere, almost a party, as nine choirs traded songs across the dressing room walls. And indeed, this is a festival – a festival of the beauty and diversity of choral singing in Europe, and of what can be achieved by joining our voices. So it seems true – singing is good for the soul.

Thanks to those of you who have made the journey to attend Eurovision Choir 2019 in Gothenburg. Good luck to all the choirs taking part and enjoy the show!

Jon Ola Sand

Executive Supervisor, Eurovision Song Contest & Eurovision Live Events.

Competing Choirs

Belgium - Almakalia
Conductor : Nicolas Dorian

ALMAKALIA is the IMEP’s brand new pop choir from Namur, Belgium. The IMEP (Institute for Music and Pedagogy) is the first francophone classical music college in Belgium to have recently opened a new pop section for voice studies. In order to teach its students the benefits of group singing and close harmony, in 2017, a pop choir was created to explore contemporary choral styles ranging from gospel, rock, pop, a cappella, to musical theatre.

Last year they focused on ensembles from Broadway musicals with excerpts from Dear Evan Hansen, Rent and The Color Purple, and this year they hosted the IMEP’s Christmas Concert with a selection of Hollywood Christmas hits accompanied by a thirty-piece orchestra.

The majority of the choir is comprised of students from the voice faculty with the addition of a few enthusiastic students from the IMEP’s other departments such as electronic music, guitar and violin. The name of the group has been chosen by the students and has a funny double meaning, ALMA in many Latin languages means “soul” and KALIA derived from the Greek καλός means “beautiful”, so “Beautiful Souls”, but in Arabic “almaqaliya” means French fry, which is a actually a Belgian invention, a national food staple and, in this context, a very good example of the typical surreal Belgian sense of humour.
For their participation at the Eurovision Choir of the Year they’ve prepared a medley arranged for the occasion to showcase the best of Belgium’s new pop scene, with songs by Tamino, Alice On The Roof, Hooverphonic, Typh Barrow and many other artists. They are accompanied by beatboxer Stijn Bearelle, member of the Belgian a cappella group Witloof Bay. The choir is directed by Nicolas Dorian, who also runs the pop voice section at the IMEP and member of Witloof Bay for 10 years. He has also worked as vocal coach and assistant musical director on The Voice Belgique for seven seasons.

Scotland - Alba
Conductor : Joy Dunlop
Musician and television presenter Joy Dunlop from Argyll, Scotland leads the enthusiastic group of 33 singers drawn from all over the country who make up the Alba choir that will represent Scotland at Eurovision Choir 2019. Choir leader Joy is no stranger to the big occasion; crowned Traditional Singer of the Year & Traditional Dance Champion at the 2015 Pan Celtic Festival in Ireland, her singing career is the result of a life-long fascination with Scotland’s traditional music and has led her all over the world; from major Celtic festivals to touring the UK, Europe, Canada, Japan and New Zealand. Through her singing, she showcases Gaelic music and song in a contemporary way that always remains true to its roots.

Joy has sung all her life and took on the task of assembling a choir with typical energy, “As a lifelong fan of Eurovision, I’m absolutely thrilled to lead a choir for such a prestigious singing competition. I’ve always had the secret dream of performing on a Eurovision stage and this is a real honour.”

The choir sing in Scots Gaelic, the indigenous language once spoken all over Scotland and all the choir members regularly compete in the choral competitions in the Royal National Mod, the main festival of Gaelic literature, song, arts and culture. All the Alba choir members are drawn from existing Gaelic language choirs but assembling a choir from all over Scotland - an area of over 80,000 square km - ensures that rehearsals are a logistical challenge with choristers flying from remote islands, taking ferries and boarding trains in order to make practice sessions. Their destination is Glasgow, the spiritual home of Alba and the city where the choir, all veterans of choral competitions, gather to practice. Choir member Coinneach MacLeod, is an avid Eurovision fan and an old friend of Joy’s. He first brought Eurovision Choir to Joy’s attention, planting the seed that started Alba on their journey to Gothenburg.

Assisting Joy on the arrangement front is musician Sileas Sinclair; a conductor, singer and teacher with a proven track record in leading choirs and arranging music. Together, they have created a unique blend of Gaelic song and harmony, with an arrangement befitting a large choir in a spectacular setting. Harmony isn’t the sole task that faces choristers and to get Alba stage fit, dance teacher Jade Adamson joins them to incorporate choreography and design a movement sequence to complement their music and raise their performance.

Singing in an arena in Gothenburg is the biggest challenge that Joy and Alba will face. To get an idea of the scale of the competition, Joy travelled to Tel Aviv in May to soak up the atmosphere of the Eurovision Song Contest, an event that caught her imagination as a youngster in Connel and has obsessed her ever since.

Ahead of the live Eurovision Choir broadcast in August, the journey that Joy and her choir make will be documented by BBC ALBA in a programme to be shown in the run up to the competition. The 45-minute film will chart the progress of the choir, through the trials of rehearsing, wardrobe decisions, anxiety over musical arrangements, choreography and nail-biting deadlines. She travels to Wales to chat to award-winning conductor, Islywn Evans who leads Ysgol Gerdd Ceredigion, the choir representing Wales at Eurovision.
This August will see Alba setting foot on the biggest stage that any of them have performed on in a blend of spectacular staging and a live stadium ambience. Despite the magnitude of the occasion and the task ahead, Joy remains undaunted, her passion for her language and music ringing with enthusiasm: “Bringing a Gaelic Choir to Gothenburg this year is a big step. This competition provides the opportunity to introduce viewers from across Europe to our Gaelic language and heritage. I can’t wait to represent Scotland in a competition of this magnitude in our native tongue. This is a priceless opportunity and one that myself and the choir are wholeheartedly embracing.”

Eurovision Choir will be broadcast live on BBC ALBA, with commentary from well known Scottish actor and presenter, Tony Kearney.

Slovenia - Jazzva
Conductor: Artistic director: Jasna Žitnik

The vocal group Jazzva is an a cappella group from Slovenia and was formed in 2005. The original members, who were at that time singing in some of the best choirs in the country, decided they needed more musical freedom and creativity, wilder beats and a louder sound of their own. In the beginning, the artistic director was Andreja Paščinski, but since 2009 the group is led by Jasna Žitnik.

Jazzva’s repertoire consists of many different genres; from pop, rock and jazz, to arrangements of folk songs and many more. The group is working with a number of excellent musical arrangers, from within their own ranks and beyond. They are more than successful in achieving all their little crazy ideas, which seem to find their way into the music.

The current group members have been singing together since 2018.

Jazzva won the Slovenian national pop-jazz a cappella competition Sredi zvezd in Žalec, three consecutive times. They also were awarded the prize for the best vocal arrangement of the competition on all three occasions (the last two years, the arrangements were created by the group’s artistic director, Jasna Žitnik).

In July 2014, Jazzva won the title of best vocal group of the Seghizzi competition in Gorizia, Italy, where they also won the audience award in the pop category and won silver in the jazz and pop categories of the renowned international a cappella competition vokal.total in Graz, Austria. They were also invited on the concert tour in Sardinia, at the Concordia vocis festival in September 2014. In 2015, they won second place at the prestigious A cappella Wettbewerb Leipzig competition and performed in the semi-finals of Slovenia’s got talent. In 2017, they qualified to perform at one of the most demanding European a cappella competitions - Tampeeren Sävel in Finland, and began to record their first CD in 2018 (to be released in the summer of 2019) and, last but not least, they were invited to represent Slovenia at the Eurovision Choir competition in 2019.
Jazzva loves to play with different sound colours and effects and wants to find its own special relationship with each-and-every song. After such a diverse amount of experiences and learning at two major European competitions, they are now trying to unearth their own musical style, sound and attitude. They are hope they are the right track.

Jazzva’s members love challenges and are on a constant learning curve year after year. Their ambitions are on the rise and will blossom even further, through their performances, organization of concerts, recording and their ever willingness to attend numerous festivals. Every Autumn in Ljubljana, they organize Popjazziada, now a stalwart festival of traditional vocal groups.

Oh yes, before we forget, they are stylish, beautiful, adorable, smart, talented and cool! And, oh, so modest!

Sweden - Zero8

Conductor: Rasmus Krigström

Zero8 - A choir formed in 2007, directed by Rasmus Krigström, the Lead singer of Ringmasters, the 2012 World Champion Barbershop quartet, has since then consisted of 20-50 of Stockholm’s best choir singers and shaped world-class Barbershoppers in double digits. Having merits such as placing Top 5 in the International Barbershop Chorus Competition, winning the Rimini International Choral Competition, having produced several full-length A Capella CDs and being on Swedish National Television multiple times, Zero8 proudly stands out as one of Sweden’s best and most versatile male choir. Zero8 is a choir for men who constantly thrive in development, both personally and as a group. We always strive to provide world class singing and an engaging showmanship to all our performances. Our goals include not only providing the best performances and entertainment, but also competing in various singing competitions and becoming the best at what we do. We look forward to inviting you to our concerts and accepting any invitations you may have for us to sing at your venues!

Switzerland - Cake O’Phonie
Conductor : Antoine Krattinger

The particularity of Cake O’Phonie is that it only exists thanks to the Chorus show, the show launched at the end of 2018 on Radio Télévision Suisse (RTS). 12 choirs competed against each other under the watchful eye of a jury and the audience for two semi-finals and a final. The winner of this competition obtained their ticket to represent Switzerland at Eurovision Choir in Sweden. A small group of enthusiasts wanted to try this atypical experience: not having enough members, they recruited other singing enthusiasts to embark on the adventure. Thus was born Cake O’Phonie: seven men and seven women, under the direction of Antoine Krattinger, from various backgrounds but all linked by a passion for singing and a taste for challenge. Building a group within a limited time frame with new members and putting together a programme of harmonized variety songs for the whole is not an easy task. And it paid off, since the choir, against all odds, won the competition. The motivation united the group to achieve a result without a shadow of a doubt far from a cacophony...

The young choir is composed of 14 members, all between 20 and 30 years old. Cake O’Phonie will defend the colours of our country by performing a medley of Swiss songs, composed of “Chante en mon cœur”, “La sera sper il lag”, “Poi”, “Le ranz des vaches”, “La ticinella”, “Beresinalied” and “Chanson d’ici.” Four minutes in French, German, Italian, Romansh and even dialect! If they make it to the final, they will try to win the trophy with “Believer” by Imagine Dragons.

The singers first assembled for the 200th anniversary celebration of their alma mater and have performed together since then. The members of Carmen manet like to speak of their profound friendship and their special musical projects, such as The Song of the Northern Winds (Pesem severnega vetra), Voice Dance (Ples glasov), On the Steps of Carmen manet (Da koder Carmen manet hodi) and I See You (Vidim te), which have been focusing on different heritage of music ranging from Scandinavian tales to Pop music, classical pieces and folk songs, and accompanied by stage choreography and costumography.

Carmen manet has been conducted by Primož Kerštanj since the choir was formed. Despite its young age, the choir has already achieved excellent results at several international competitions in Italy, Croatia, China, Switzerland and Latvia. Their international reputation has been shaped especially due to their Grand prix win at the 50th Montreux International Choral Competition in April 2014 and their achievement of becoming Eurovision Choir of the Year 2017 at the inaugural competition in Riga 2017.
